WAKEFIELD – A&M Construction is pleased to announce its corporate sponsorship of the Wakefield Interfaith Food Pantry (WIFP). Through the program, employees contribute food and other needed items at the company’s main office in Wakefield. Periodically, the collection box is taken to the food pantry and the company includes a monetary donation. A&M Construction is also on the action alert list of local groups and businesses the WIFP can call upon when there is a specific need.

President Mark Roberts notes, “This sponsorship enables our employees and the company to donate, as a group, to a vital community resource. The Wakefield Interfaith Food Pantry is a local non-profit that relies 100% on volunteers and donations. It’s heartening to know that every item and all money donated directly support neighbors in need.”

The Wakefield Interfaith Food Pantry was founded in 1982 by members of the First Baptist Church. Today, the food pantry is supported by 10 congregations, as well as by individuals and local businesses. It is truly a community resource.
